

Building the Public Services of Tomorrow

Supported by the Construction Industry Group

Speaker:

Nick Smallwood, Chief Executive, Infrastructure and Projects Authority, UK

Building the Public Services of Tomorrow

The UK has recorded its biggest-ever portfolio of major projects and programmes - from railways, roads, schools, hospitals and housing, to energy, telecommunications, defence, IT and major transformation programmes. These major projects deliver government's commitment to drive economic growth, innovation and net zero in the years ahead.

In this breakfast briefing, Nick will share with the participants the latest developments in the construction and related sectors in the UK. He will also give us insight on the UK government's ambitions and strategies to support the delivery of world-class, innovative and life-changing projects and programmes.

About the speaker

Nick Smallwood is the Chief Executive Officer of the Infrastructure and Projects Authority and Head of Government's Project Delivery Function.

Nick is the former Vice President for Projects Engineering and Chief Projects Engineer at Shell. Nick has 40 years experience of managing complex project portfolios and having developed Shell's Global Project Academy. At Shell, Nick was accountable for managing how projects were delivered and a variety of significant improvement programmes.

Nick was also a trustee of the board of the Association for Project Management (APM) until November 2019, where he contributed to the overall development of the UK's project management profession.

This event is hosted by Jeremy Sheldon.
