

Talent Management and Employment Trends

Speakers:

David Siew, Partner, People Services, KPMG China

Michelle Hui, Director, Executive Search and Recruitment Services, KPMG China

Talent Management and Employment Trends

Over the past year, the economy and employment market have shown signs of recovery. Since the second half of 2021, the relaxed social distancing measures have induced more business activities. Riding on the recovering economy, the 2022 employment market is expected to see an increase of headcounts.

Recently, KPMG published the sixth annual Hong Kong Executive Salary Outlook based on a survey about the latest employment market and talent management trends in Hong Kong. It interviewed around 800 business executives across sectors, including consumer markets, financial services, innovation and technology, professional services, public sector and real estate.

During this webinar, professionals from KPMG China will share their insights on the following:

- The Executive Outlook and Employment Trends Survey.
- Implications for talent management, skills, and ways of working.
- Sector observations and trends.
